

Advective flow paths calculated by the 2000 regional model from two monitoring wells within the Central Impact Area, (A) MW44, and (B) MW59, and the approximate positions of nearby wells contaminated with Royal Dutch Explosive (RDX), western Cape Cod, Massachusetts. The flow paths are estimates of the ultimate future discharge location of contaminants. Grids appear irregular because orthogonal grids are projected onto curved particle tracks.